Human resources professionals deal with the people who make an organization run. They must be good listeners, handle workplace conflict with ease, adhere to confidentiality rules and possess strong organizational skills. If you are empathetic and compassionate toward others, can be objective as well as analytical, a human resources career may be right for you.

About This Program

Human resources adds value to an organization by managing its most important resource – people. HR professionals attract, recruit and hire staff; provide details about programs and benefits; maintain employment records; and work with payroll. Explore employment law, employee training and development, compensation and benefits administration, labor relations, and wellness and safety initiatives.

What Makes This Program Unique

- Earn two degrees in three years by combining Human Resources with the Leadership Development program.
- Application of simulated workplace projects such as the hiring process, compensation and benefits, training and development, employment law and corporate culture.
- Accelerated learning environment that blends interactive in-class activities with online learning. Evening class offerings accommodate the working adult.
- Program uses SHRM competencies and is aligned with Jefferson County SHRM (JCHRMA) and the National Association of African American Human Resources Professionals (NAAAHHR-Milwaukee).
- Opportunity to network with local employers in capstone projects prior to graduation from the program.
